POLICY 6.9
Blood Donation Leave

PRINCIPLES

Overview
Upon request, the university must provide three hours of unpaid leave per calendar year to eligible faculty and staff members who wish to donate blood. Requests for more than three hours, or requests from non-eligible employees for blood donation purposes is subject to supervisory approval.

Use of Accruals
Eligible employees with accrued time may choose to use accrued health and personal leave or vacation for all or part of the leave taken for blood donation purposes.

*Note: Use of accruals by exempt staff members should be handled in accordance with college/unit procedures and with principles described in the “Exempt Staff” section of the “Overview” of University Policy 6.9, Time Away From Work.

PROcedures

Requesting Blood Donation Leave

Nonacademic Staff
Nonacademic staff members must request time off, in advance, from the supervisor in accordance with their unit’s procedure for requesting time away from work in general. Supervisors must respond in accordance with unit procedure.

Academic Staff
For guidance, academic staff should refer to University Policy 6.2.1, Leaves for Professors and Academic Staff.

Weill Cornell Medical College
Employees of the Weill Cornell Medical College should request time off in accordance with the procedures appropriate for their work unit.

Record Keeping
Supervisors may require confirmation from the employee of his or her attendance at the blood donation site.
