Health and Personal Leave for Staff*
(Excluding Academic and Bargaining Unit Staff)

*Formerly Sick Leave, Health Care Leave, and Personal Leave

POLICY STATEMENT

Cornell University provides paid health and personal leave to eligible staff members for a variety of reasons. Health and personal leave must be approved and recorded in a manner that protects the interests of both the institution and its staff members.

REASON FOR POLICY

The university appreciates and values staff members as they carry out their job responsibilities in support of the university’s missions of teaching, research, and public service. The university also recognizes that staff members need time away from work for a variety of reasons including their own medical needs, the medical needs of family, or to attend to personal matters. To that end, paid health and personal leave benefits are available to eligible staff members. This policy assists staff members in understanding their eligibility for paid health and personal leave time away from work and the principles and procedures surrounding its use.

POLICY 6.9

Health and Personal Leave (Excluding Academic and Bargaining Unit Staff)

PRINCIPLES

Purpose

Cornell University provides paid health and personal leave, with supervisory approval, to eligible staff members when they are unable to work for the following reasons:

- To tend to their own medical needs such as illness or injury, including medical or dental appointments
- To give their full attention to the health-related care of family members (see Definitions)
- To tend to personal matters such as personal business that cannot otherwise be accomplished outside of the workday. Examples include, but are not limited to, legal or financial appointments, house closings, municipal office visits, and home maintenance appointments. Other examples of when health and personal leave is appropriate include school conferences, community volunteerism, inclement weather, and personal family needs, including unforeseen child or eldercare needs.

The primary purpose of health and personal leave is to provide paid time off due to a staff member’s own medical needs. To that end, one very important perspective on the purpose of health and personal leave is that it is “insurance” for the staff member in the event he or she is unable to work for an extended period of time due to his or her own medical problem. If, for example, a staff member is on short-term disability pursuant to the “Medical Leaves for Staff” policy, health and personal leave can be used as a supplement to the half-pay, short-term disability benefit. Therefore, it is crucial that staff members use health and personal leave wisely. Staff members are accountable to exercise good stewardship over the use of their leave accruals and to work with their supervisors to proactively balance time away from work with the business needs of the unit.

When a staff member requests health or personal leave, supervisors are responsible for managing absenteeism in order to properly and compliantly apply appropriate leave policies during the staff member’s absence. This includes, but is not limited to, proper management of absences that may be covered under the Family and Medical Leave Act and short-term disability and workers’ compensation laws. As part of the approval process, it is appropriate and, in some cases, expected that supervisors make reasonable inquiries as to the reasons for requesting health and personal leave. Supervisors may not ask staff members for a medical diagnosis or for any specific medical information. If supervisors are unclear about what constitutes a reasonable inquiry relative to managing medically related absenteeism, they should consult with their college/unit human resource representatives or with Medical Leaves Administration.
POLICY 6.9

PRINCIPLES, continued

◆Note: Health and personal leave is not intended to be used as vacation. For example, time off greater than one day in a calendar week due to scheduled local school district closures are expected to be covered through the use of vacation.

Eligibility
All regular full-time, regular part-time, and benefits-eligible temporary staff are eligible to accrue health and personal leave.

Medical and Family Leaves for Staff
Health and personal leave is also used in conjunction with various medical and family leaves, including but not limited to, short-term disability, parental leave, family health leave, and military family leave. Refer to the “Medical Leaves for Staff” and the “Family Leaves for Staff” sections of University Policy 6.9, Time Away from Work for a full description of such leaves.

Health and Personal Leave Accrual Calculations

Nonexempt Staff
For nonexempt staff, health and personal leave accruals are based upon the total number of hours paid (to a maximum of 80 hours during a biweekly pay period, but no more than 40 hours per week) multiplied by the health and personal leave accrual factor.

To determine the health and personal leave hours accrued for a payroll period, multiply the total hours paid (up to 80 hours) during a biweekly period by the constant health and personal leave accrual factor of .04615. For example, if a full-time staff member is paid for 80 hours during a payroll period, then he or she will earn 3.7 hours of health and personal leave for that particular payroll period. If a part-time staff member is paid for 45 hours during a payroll period, he or she will earn 2.08 hours of health and personal leave for that particular payroll period.

Exempt Staff
Exempt full-time staff members accrue 1.0 days of health and personal leave a month. Exempt part-time staff members accrue a pro rata of the 1.0 days, based on the part-time staff member’s standard part-time appointment.

Maximum Accrual

Endowed
Endowed nonexempt and exempt staff members are permitted to accrue a maximum of 702.0 hours (90 working days) of health and personal leave. For nonexempt staff in positions that have been approved for a 40-hour workweek, the maximum accumulation is 720 hours.

Contract College
Contract college nonexempt and exempt staff members are permitted to accrue a maximum of 90 days of regular health and personal leave, and an additional 110 days of banked health and personal leave (up to a maximum of 200 days).
POLICY 6.9
Health and Personal Leave (Excluding Academic and Bargaining Unit Staff)

For nonexempt staff in positions that have been approved for a 40-hour workweek, the maximum accumulation is 720 regular hours, plus 880 banked hours for a total of 1600 hours, or 200 days.

◆Note: In the case of a staff member employed in both endowed and contract college units, maximum accrual is prorated for benefits-eligible part-time employees.

Non-Accrual

For staff members on paid leave (other than vacation), health and personal leave ceases to accrue on the first day of the month following the 20th consecutive calendar day of the leave. The 20 consecutive calendar days are counted from the first day of absence. Health and personal leave does not accrue during unpaid leave.

Repurchasing Accruals

Staff members involved in any accident for which they are compensated by an insurance company for loss of wages may use this compensation to repurchase their health and personal leave accruals used during their absence.

Transfers and Changes in Status

Nonacademic Staff

Nonacademic staff members transferring to new units retain their accumulated health and personal leave if they are transferring into another benefits-eligible position and/or remain benefits-eligible. The new unit is responsible for providing funds to cover the transferred health and personal leave up to the allowable maximum accumulation.

Academic Staff

When an employee in an academic position transfers to a staff position, he or she will be credited with 12 days of regular health and personal leave for every year of prior continuous service up to a maximum of 90 days. A contract college academic employee transferring to a contract college staff position may be credited with up to an additional 110 days in his or her health and personal leave bank. The new unit is responsible for amending the records accordingly.

When a nonacademic staff member transfers to an academic position, he or she should refer to University Policy 6.2.1, Leaves for Professors and Academic Staff for information on academic leaves.

Temporary Staff

When a temporary employee becomes benefits-eligible with no break in service, the health and personal leave accrual is retroactive to the staff member’s original hire date.
POLICY 6.9
Health and Personal Leave (Excluding Academic and Bargaining Unit Staff)

Terminations
Upon termination of employment, health and personal leave balances are cancelled. Health and personal leave may not be taken after the last day worked. For more information, refer to University Policy 6.12, Separations, Voluntary and Involuntary (Including Layoff).

Abuse of Health and Personal Leave
Abuse of health and personal leave may be cause for disciplinary action. Such disciplinary action should be discussed with the staff member and might include the requirement of a physician’s certification as verification of a staff member’s illness before health and personal leave is paid. Continued and/or severe health and personal leave abuse may result in disciplinary action including suspension or dismissal. For more information, refer to University Policy 6.11.3, Employee Discipline (Excluding Academic and Bargaining Unit Staff).
POLICY 6.9

Health and Personal Leave (Excluding Academic and Bargaining Unit Staff)

PROCEDURES

Requesting Health and Personal Leave

Health and personal leave accruals begin immediately upon employment. Health and personal leave cannot be taken before it is accrued. Nonexempt staff members may use health and personal leave by the hour; exempt staff members should normally use it in increments of half-days.

Employees must obtain supervisory approval for the use of health and personal leave. Therefore, in foreseeable circumstances, such as for routine medical and dental appointments, staff members must request approval from the supervisor with as much advance notice as possible and in accordance with unit practice, to allow the supervisor to plan accordingly. In cases such as unforeseen illness or emergency, it is not necessary to receive advance permission for the leave; however, the staff member should notify the supervisor in accordance with unit practice, ideally before the start of the workday or as soon thereafter as possible.

Recordkeeping

The payroll system is the official accrual record for exempt and nonexempt staff.

Unit management (e.g., supervisors, payroll representatives, human resource representatives) should inform exempt and nonexempt staff members as to how to record the use of accruals and how to access their leave balance information. Management and staff members are both responsible to be aware of the health and personal leave balance and for periodically reviewing it as needed to verify that balances are accurate.

To officially correct a staff member's health and personal leave balance, the correction must be made in accordance with the university payroll system/time collection requirements.
